Hello, I'm Bryan, and I'll be assisting you today. It looks like you have some questions about your phone issue. I can help with that.

Bryan - 12:37 PM

alright thank you brian... i'm locked out of my phone after speaking with a rep and restarting my internet and devices. they cant possibly be related no?

Me - 12:38 PM

It's uncommon for resetting your internet and restarting your devices to affect the PIN on your phone, so it may just be a coincidence. However, let's focus on the steps you can take to regain access to your device.

Please ensure that you are entering the correct PIN. Sometimes, we may accidentally mistype or forget recent changes.

Bryan - 12:39 PM

hard to be unsure now that i'm waiting 900 seconds sure

Me - 12:40 PM

If you see a "Forgot PIN/Pattern" option on your lock screen after a few failed attempts, please use it. You can enter your Google account credentials to reset the PIN.

Alternatively, you can try using Find My Device from another device:

1. Sign in with the Google account associated with the locked phone.
2. Select the locked Pixel 7a.
3. Use the "Lock" option to set a temporary password, which will override your existing PIN.

Bryan - 12:40 PM

unfortunately theres only an emergency option at the bottom Bryan.

Me - 12:42 PM

Oh, I understand! Let's go through the possible steps to unlock your Google Pixel 7a, considering that the emergency option is the only one available on the screen.

You can try to use Google's Find My Device service to unlock or reset your phone:

Go to Google Find My Device using a computer or another mobile device.

Sign in with the Google account that is associated with your locked Pixel 7a.

Once logged in, select your locked Pixel 7a from the list of devices.

Use the "Lock" option. This will allow you to set a temporary password.

Enter the temporary password on your Pixel 7a to unlock it.

Bryan - 12:43 PM

the lock option doesnt lock my phone and set it as lost?

Me - 12:47 PM

The "Lock" option in Google Find My Device is designed to help you regain access to your device by setting a new password, while also allowing you to mark the device as lost.

When you use the "Lock" option on Google Find My Device, you can:

- Set a temporary password that overrides your current PIN or pattern.
- Display a message or phone number on the lock screen, should you wish to indicate that the device is lost.

Bryan - 12:47 PM

you dont even have my account details lol and i'm not sure where to go from that screenshot.

Me - 12:50 PM

Hello, Devon. I'm Robin, and I'll be assisting you today. It looks like you have some questions about a locked account. I can help with that.

Robin - 3:55 PM

thank you i'm on googles find my device. lol its funny i can ping the ring tone but it wont let me factory reset.. not sure how my pin got changed to begin with

Me - 3:56 PM

I'm sorry to hear about the trouble you're experiencing with your phone lock, Devon. It sounds really inconvenient, especially since you can ping the ringtone but still can't reset it. Let's work together to get this resolved so you can access your device again.

Just to ensure we're on the same page, is your current device lost or stolen?

Robin - 3:59 PM

nope sitting right next to me. im not sure when or how the pin was changed but suddently had a problem when i went to reset the phone. i was in the middle of a conversation with a previous representative who was guiding me through the process to reset my internet and troubleshoot google cast not working. i went to reset the network settings and was taken back when i couldnt remember the login for the phone pin being used to using the biometric finger print scanner.

however, i challenged myself to remember so i closed the phone and tried different combinations of numbers to no avail
no i am sitting waiting over a thousand seconds between tries lmao
i swear i've entered it correctly by now. its 100% changed
Me - 4:05 PM

I completely understand how frustrating this situation must be for you, Devon. When you're accustomed to using the fingerprint scanner, it can be challenging to remember the PIN. It sounds like you're really stuck, and the long wait times between attempts are understandably exasperating. Let's work together to find a solution to unlock your device.

Could you please confirm the make and model of the device that needs to be unlocked? I'm asking this because it appears you are not signed in with your T-Mobile user ID and password.
Robin - 4:08 PM

Me - 4:10 PM

Thank you for providing the information through the screenshot. I am currently reviewing the best options available to complete the unlock request for your Google Pixel 7A.

Robin - 4:13 PM

alright then.. thank you robin

Me - 4:15 PM

If you have forgotten the password/PIN to unlock your Google Pixel 7a, you can reset it using the methods below. Please note that these methods may erase all data on your device:

Factory Reset Using Recovery Mode

Turn off your Google Pixel 7a.

Press and hold the Volume Down and Power buttons simultaneously until the device logo appears and the phone boots into Fastboot Mode.

Use the Volume buttons to navigate to "Recovery mode" and press the Power button to select it.

When you see the Android mascot with an exclamation mark, press and hold the Power button, then press the Volume Up button to enter Recovery Mode.

Use the Volume buttons to navigate to "Wipe data/factory reset" and press the Power button to select it.

Navigate to "Factory data reset" and select it with the Power button.

Once the reset is complete, select "Reboot system now".

If you have previously enabled Find My Device:

Visit the Find My Device website on another device.

Sign in with the Google account used on your locked Google Pixel 7a.

Select your Google Pixel 7a from the list of devices.

Choose "Erase Device" to delete all data, passwords, and personal information.

After performing these steps, you can set up your device again as if it were brand new, and either restore your data from a backup or start afresh.

What else I can do to make this an exceptional experience for you?

Robin - 4:20 PM

i just really thought it had something to do with me speaking with the representative. he reset my internet i saw each one of my devices 'glitch' one at a time and then he instructed me to restart them all which is when i ran into not having my correct phone pin. just wondering if the two are related

i came to you after trying to use find my device via my computer.. i just tried to hold down the volume down + the power button and nothing happened.. i can hold down the power + volume up and it will do a soft reset but it doesnt take me to any boot console

Me - 4:26 PM

Thank you for confirming the steps you have performed.

I'm glad to hear that the internet services have been reset. However, please note that the device PIN and internet services are not related to each other.

Since you are unable to recall the PIN for your Google Pixel 7a, it will also need to be reset. Alternatively, you can visit a Google store to have the device unlocked.

Robin - 4:33 PM

alright thank you again robin

Me - 4:34 PM
